The Conference

OFFSHORE DECOMMISSIONING CONFERENCE

The 2018 conference, run jointly by Decom North Sea and Oil & Gas UK, will take place from 26 – 28 November at the Fairmont Hotel, St Andrews.

The decommissioning market is growing steadily and is likely to be worth £1.8 billion per annum on average over the next decade (£2 billion in 2017). The UK supply chain has the skills and equipment to compete for over 80 per cent of the total decommissioning scope forecast over the next ten years, presenting the UK industry with a major opportunity to develop world-class decommissioning capabilities.

With these opportunities in mind, the 2018 conference will encompass several sessions focused on the latest decommissioning updates, trends and case studies. Details of the individual sessions and keynote presentations will be shared in due course.

The key objective of the conference is to bring a wide spectrum of oil and gas companies into one room; small supply chain companies, contractors and many of the large operators. Previous conferences have shown attendees to be actively involved and willing to contribute and discuss the challenges and opportunities associated with offshore oil and gas decommissioning in an open and engaging atmosphere.

Attending this annual event will allow delegates to:

- Update their knowledge and learn from industry leaders and key stakeholders
- Take part in an excellent business development and networking opportunity, engaging with 450+ industry professionals, including at the welcome reception and conference dinner
